A CLOSE CALL.

A Story of Love and War.

BY MAJOR ALFRED E. CALHOUN.

CHAPTER XIII.

I told Howard Scott of my interview with General Winder, and by way of inducing me to believe that I had nothing to fear he introduced me to Captain Flynn, of Indiana, and Captain Sawyer, of New Jersey, two officers who had been condemned to death because of two Confederates executed as spies by General Burnside in Kentucky. I said nothing to these gentlemen about my own case, but the fact that they bore themselves with a quiet confidence that their own Government was able to protect them gave me much comfort.

For some weeks I had noticed that soon after the lights were out every alternate night Howard Scott would creep from under our blanket and would not return till after midnight, and often not till near daylight. I also saw certain marks on his clothes, and this set me to wondering. I questioned him at first, but he avoided the subject pointedly, and I did not refer to it again.

This went on for weeks. Howard getting thinner, dirtier and more ragged every day. It was not curiosity so much as an intense desire to do something to break up the horrible monotony of my life that decided me to find out my friend's secret for myself. One night, just as the guards were calling out: "Ten o'clock and all's well," and the men in the Upper Potomac room were shouting and singing as usual, Howard got up quietly, fixed the blanket about his shoulders, then with his boots in his hands crept down the narrow lane between the ranks of prostrate men.

Before he had gone fifty feet I was up and after him, leaving my old boots behind. Down the steps to the Lower Chickamauga, down the steps to the room, he went. The lights from the lamps on Carey street made it comparatively bright here. I saw the crouching figure of a man at the floor-plate, behind one of the stoves, and as Howard approached I heard a faint whispering.

I went noiselessly across the room, and like a revelation the situation burst on me and I saw through my friend's secret. There was a figure inside the hearth, but Howard had vanished by myself and of the man who held the other side of the blanket was to move our arms so as to force air into the tunnel, for on this depended the life of the brave fellow working like a mole within.

The man in the tunnel drew in after him a square wooden box, such as had been used in the prison for a spittoon. At opposite sides this box had cords fastened to it, which served to drag it in and out, and also as a means of signaling, by the man working within, when it was full.

The dirt from the tunnel was scattered over the floor, from which the loose fodder was first removed—it was always placed back when the night's work was finished.

I found the fanning very hard work, but was relieved every half hour, as was the man digging inside. The sensation of working in the dark with these intensely silent, earnest men I can never forget, while the time was regulated by the "all's well" of the guards, under whose feet a pathway to "Liberty and God's land" was being cut.

I wanted to take my turn inside, but Howard would not hear to it until he had had a chance to "post" me as to the work.

About one o'clock we were relieved by another gang, and with my friend, crept back, as I had come, to the Upper Chickamauga.

Hitherto I had been living in daily dread of a summons from the prison officials, to answer for the death of Frank Brent, but now that I had something to do and a prospect of escape, my feelings underwent a radical change, and I became positively cheerful.

Through Howard Scott I met Colonel Ross and all my fellow-workers, some of whom were old friends. There were less than thirty in all engaged in this wonderful work, and the secrecy with which they succeeded in keeping their scheme from all the other prisoners was not the least amazing part of the undertaking.

I soon got to know the tunnel as well as if I had been its originator. Its course was due east under a roadway that ran down from Carey street to the canal and at right angles to the prison front. On the other side of this short street there was a high-board fence that shut out the space from beyond view of the guards. This space was a sort of court yard for another warehouse to the east, and in this warehouse great quantities of boxes were stored; these boxes had been received under flag of truce for the prisoners, but about January 1, 1864, the delivery of these ceased, and they were nightly looted by our guards.

As the tunnel neared completion my own anxiety became so great that rest during the day became impossible, for an intense impulse was on me to be at work all the time. I found another Kentuckian who was possessed in the same way. This was Captain Johnston, who could work harder and go longer without food or sleep than any man I ever met.

At length, in early February, the tunnel was nearly completed, and Captain Johnston was missing from roll call. The prison was searched for him and the tunnelers, who knew where he was, felt cold and nervous till Ross told them that Johnston must have escaped by hiding one of the guards, as Captain Shelton had done a short time before.

CHAPTER XIV.

Now and then letters were received under flag of truce, and those were occasions never to be forgotten. Soon after reaching Libby I wrote a number of letters to my parents and friends and one to Carrie Brent in which I explained my situation. As our letters could not exceed a page in length, and were all read over by the prison authorities, I was in despair of hearing from Carrie, when to my great delight—and this on the eve of our exodus from Libby—I received an answer from her.

The part vital to my story I here transcribe: HOME, Feb. 8, 1864. "MY DEAR CAPTAIN WAITTS: While all my sympathies in this cruel war are on the side of the Sunny South, still I must confess I am deeply pained to learn of the misfortune that has befallen you. For a brave man to be deprived of his liberty is trying, no matter how kind his treatment; but as the Confederate authorities can not properly feed nor clothe their own brave men in the field, it stands to reason that the prisoners of war in their hands must suffer dearly for life's necessities.

"Your mother has sent you through two boxes of provisions and clothing, and I have tried to show my esteem in the same way. Read all the books I send you, a Bible among the rest, and note the marked passages. The set of chess are the same you and I so often played with in the happy past.

"And now as to brother. He was relieved by Mr. Lincoln for ninety days and sent to Johnston's Island up near Sandusky. I have been to see him three times, and each time he has seemed thinner and more worn. He is in the hospital, and the doctors say he has consumption, but he refuses to believe this and says he would be himself in a week if he were only back in the saddle.

"I have recently seen our mutual friend, General Boyle, and he is hard at work on a plan whereby you can be exchanged for Frank. General Holt is interested in this plan, and as he has much influence, it will not surprise me to see you home any day.

"I wish you and Frank, once you are free, would 'pair off,' as they do in Congress, and let others finish up the war. I am sure all Kentuckians would agree to this plan, if they only knew how the hearts of mothers, wives, sisters and sweet-hearts are breaking at home. Our beautiful land seems changed into the valley of the shadow of death, for there is mourning in every household, one day for a dear boy in gray, and another for a dead boy in blue. But the bullets that slay them do not stop on the battle-field, but wing their way over hill and dale, nor rest till they find lodgment in some woman's heart.

"With an ever-living memory of your goodness to me and mine, and praying night and day for the dawn of peace, believe me
"Yours friend,
"CARLISLE HUNTER."

I read this letter over and over, read it till I knew it by heart, read it till it separated at the folds, and then, sentimental youth that I was, I placed it over my heart and felt happier and better for having it there.

The same mail brought Howard Scott a letter from Mollie Vernon, and he showed that the love of liberty is stronger than the love of liberty, by foregoing all about the tunnel, while, with meliorate in his fine, brave eyes, he told me of the comfort this letter had brought him.

At length the day came, or rather the night, when there were two openings to the tunnel, the new one being inside the high board fence across the way.

By ten o'clock of the night of the escape, every prisoner in Libby knew of the tunnel and was eager to go through it. Howard and I decided to keep close together, so we held each other's hands that we might not be parted by the crowd we found about the opening in the heart at ten o'clock. If these men had moved with the order of soldiers, five hundred, instead of one hundred and fifty, might have gone through; but, as it was, they jostled about the opening, pulling men out who were half in, and shouting and swearing like so many mad men.

If it were not for the customary noise in the Upper Potomac room, the guards must have noticed the hubbub near the chimney. For fully two hours Howard and I waited, still holding each other's hands. At length a shrewd tunneller near us raised the cry: "The guards! the guards!" and on the instant, the crowd about the opening surged away and rushed up the stairs.

The space about the hearth was cleared and our chance had come. I dropped into the cellar first, closely followed by the Lieutenant. We needed no guide to lead us to the opening, and as soon as we found it we plunged in, I again in the advance.

About the middle of the tunnel we had run on a sharp bowlder that forced a slight deflection northward; here, as I groped my way through, I came upon a man stuck hard and fast. It proved to be an Austrian Count, Lieutenant von Klotz, of the Army of the Potomac, and a splendid officer. He had come over to see the war, and he spoke but little English, and this little vanished in the tunnel, but fortunately I know some German.

"Push ahead!" I said, prodding at him as I was being prodded myself. "Gott in Himmel! I can't. I'm fast!" he replied in German.

"Your clothes?"

"Yes, my breeches."

"Slip them off and I'll carry them out for you," I said.

By our united efforts we got off the trousers and he was enabled to go on. I handed them to him after I emerged from the tunnel, and the last I saw of him, as Howard and I made our way south toward the canal, he was putting his clothes to rights.

It was a starlight night with a keen frost in the air, but it was a joyous change from the field atmosphere of the prison. We did not hurry, but walked leisurely to the east. Under the lamp at the corner of the prison I saw a guard standing, and I heard his cry: "One o'clock; post number ten and all's well!" "All's well!" echoed Howard as we passed out of sight of the prison and made our way toward the railroad, which we had followed for a mile or two and then made for the Chickamauga swamp, in which we were to remain in hiding for the day.

The success of the hour favored us. Beyond the prison we saw no guards, and excepting a drunken man in uniform who saluted us as we passed, we saw no soldiers. Neither of us had boots fit for marching, and I laid no store to this. Once on the road leading to the North we quickened our pace. We had gone about two miles when a fire in the advance caused us to change our course.

We turned to the east, climbing over earthworks and passing scores of guns, now harmless as the birds that some day were to build their nests in them.

We were in doubt as to the location of the Chickamauga when to our great delight we entered a dense growth of water willows and soon were on the ice that covered the swamp. This ice was very treacherous; again and again it gave way under us, letting us down to our arms pits and forcing us to break long avenues before we could find a dry knoll or a log that would enable us to rise. And so we kept painfully on till the blessed sun rose up and warmed our faces and our hearts.

ROMANTIC STORY

—OF—

The Late Civil War.

By JOHN R. MUSICK.

"THE FIRST MAN WHO MOVES DIES!"

It is with no little pleasure that we announce a new story from the pen of this POPULAR WESTERN WRITER. Thousands of readers all over the West have read and admired Mr. Musick's stories, and to such (among whom can be counted surely the readers of this paper) the mere announcement of a new serial by him will awaken the most pleasant anticipations of a rare literary treat.

is a war-story of more than usual excellence, as war stories go, and is certain to add much to the already wide reputation of its author. It is, of course, full of stirring incident, has a strong and interesting plot, and besides being correct in its historic details, is utterly free from partisan coloring. Of course it is written in a loyal spirit, but at the same time full credit is given "the other side" for their courage and bravery.

"AWAY, AWAY, I FEAR NOT THE COWARDLY DOGS!"

I SLIPPED INTO THE HOLE.

Inbed. There were a lot of loose bricks beside the figure, and a black hole back of the hearth told the place they had been taken from.

"Is that you, Johnston?" whispered the man.

"Yes," I replied. "Is all right?"

"All right. Scott's just gone down. Be careful," said the guard.

I slipped into the hole feet first, and with the aid of a rope dropped into the cellar under the hospital.

It was intensely dark, but as soon as I reached the bottom I felt a hand on my shoulder, and a mouth at my ear asked:

"Who is this?"

"Wait!" This in surprise. Then Howard Scott whispered: "As you've discovered the secret for yourself, I am not to blame. But you must explain the matter to Colonel Ross; and now that you are here, you must go to work."

I readily agreed to this; and after a few words, in which he told of the tunnel they were building out of Libby, he led me across the floor, the stones of which appeared to be covered with a substance like loose fodder. After leaving me standing along the wall for some minutes Howard came back and said:

"The boys are a bit surprised, but they'll be glad to have you join in. Now, ask no questions, but do as you are told."

He led me up along the wall to where I felt soft earth under my feet and heard a number of men whispering—every communication was whispered. "I am going in," said Howard. "and you are green to the business, you must stand here and fan."

I felt an irregular opening cut into and through the stone foundation. This was the entrance to the tunnel. A man standing at the opposite side of the opening passed over to me the two corners of what felt like a blanket, and whispered: "Steady; keep it up slow."

It need not be told what I was why it was to be done. The

The Union is on a boom in Kentucky. Fifty charters went out to that number of new lodges in the last ten days.
Bro. W. T. Winn, former editor of the Labor Journal, Fulton, Ky., reports two sub Unions from Owen county. This makes a total of seventeen sub Unions in Owen county, and the good work will go on.
Bro. P. H. Haney, lecturer for Tenth Congressional District, has just completed the organization of Knott county, and reports the Union booming in that country. Bro. Haney is one of our countrymen.
Bro. S. P. Bond, lecturer for Eleventh district, is making things lively in Laurel, Whitley, Pulaski, Casey, Knox and other counties. Bro. Bond is a hustler, and has organized more sub Unions than any man in Kentucky.
F. & L. U. Meeting at Crockettville.
At a meeting held at Crockettville by the F. & L. U., April 17, 1891, the House was called to order by the President, G. S. Miller.
John S. Hargis, W. B. Combs and Thomas Deaton were appointed Committee on Resolutions.
Ordered that we have a called meeting at Jackson on the second Monday in May, at 2 o'clock P. M.
Ordered that the time of holding the Breathitt county F. & L. U. be on Friday before the third Saturday in July, October, January and April.
Ordered that the next County Union be held with Barge Lodge, No. 2074, on Troublesome.
On motion of G. S. Miller, the following resolution was adopted:
Resolved, that we hereby recommend to the farmers of the 34th Senatorial district the Hon. John S. Hargis as a suitable man, and in every respect well qualified to represent us in the next General Assembly of Kentucky.
The Committee on Resolutions made the following report:
Resolved by the farmers of Breathitt county, 1. That we greatly fear that true patriotism and wise statehood is not as fully represented in the Constitutional Convention as should have been.
2. That we fear true patriotism is a majority of the members of this convention is stifled by the love of money.
3. That we think the long-continued session and stupid laziness of the present convention is an outrage on the taxpayers of this Commonwealth, an outrage on humanity and civilization, an outrage on our Republican form of Government, and an outrage upon the honor and patriotic examples of our forefathers.
4. That we think if this convention cannot revise the Constitution without bankrupting the State, it had better come home and let us live under the Constitution we have lived under for the past forty years.
5. That we return our thanks to the patrons of Crockettville for their generosity and kind treatment which they showed while we were among them.
6. That a copy of these resolutions be furnished the HAZEL GREEN HERALD and the Jackson Herald for publication.

3. That we endorse him as a candidate to represent said district, and ask the voters of this Senatorial district who are assembled in their county meetings on the 2nd day of May, 1891, to endorse the action of this report.
Report of the committee on Good of the Order was as follows:
To the President and Members of Morgan county F. & L. U. in convention assembled: Your committee on Good of the Order and sixteen sub Unions represented and two sub Unions are not represented. The Order in this county is not prospering as we would wish to see, but believe we are a fixture in this county, and with proper education as directed in our constitution purposes very much good will be accomplished. We believe that our people have been very much enlightened and benefited by our organization already. So far as we have been able to ascertain general harmony and great unanimity prevail in our organization, would recommend to the brotherhood at large that they read more of our literature and study the interest of the masses of the people of our State and also those of sister States.

Report of the committee on Legislative demands:
We, the Committee on Legislative demands, beg leave to submit the following: 1. Believing that the Union is founded on the idea that all men shall have equal chances in the race of life, and that no tax shall be collected directly or indirectly from the people except what is necessary to carry on this Government, economically and honestly administered for the benefit of life, and that all tariff be gradually reduced.
2. We demand such a revision of the tariff will lay the heaviest burden on the luxuries and the interest of the necessities of life, and that all tariff be gradually reduced.
3. We demand that the public lands, the heritage of the people, be reserved for actual settlers only—not other lands to railroads or speculators; and that all lands now held for speculative purposes be taxed at their full value.
4. That measures be taken to prevent aliens from acquiring title to the lands in the United States and Territories, and to force those already acquired by aliens to be relinquished to the national Government by purchase, and it retain said rights for the use of actual settlers and citizens of the United States, and that the law be rigidly enforced against all railroad corporations which have not complied with the terms of their contract by which they have received large grants of land.
5. That we demand the speedy payment of the public bonded debt of the Government at par, by operating the mints to their full capacity in silver and gold, and the tendering of the same without discrimination to the public creditors of the nation according to contract, thus saving the interest on the public debt to the industrial masses, and that the further issue of bonds be prohibited.
6. That we demand the abolition of national banks, the substitution of legal tender Treasury notes in lieu of national bank notes, issued in sufficient volume to do the business of the country on a cash system, circulating the amount needed on a per capita basis as the country demands; and that all the money loaned by the Government to a legal tender in payment of all debts, both public and private.
7. That we demand that Congress shall pass laws shall be enacted to protect the dealings in futures of all agricultural and mechanical productions, observing a strict and equal policy in trade, which shall secure prompt conviction and imposing such penalties as shall secure the full and perfect compliance with the law.
8. That we demand a graded income tax, as we believe it is the most equitable system of taxation, placing the burden of government on those who can best afford to pay, instead of laying it on the farmers and mechanics, exempting millowners, bond holders and corporations.
9. That we demand the strict enforcement of laws prohibiting the importation of foreign labor under the contract system.
10. That we demand the most rigid control of railroads and express companies in the United States by the Government.
11. That we demand the election of United States Senators by a direct vote of the people.
12. That we demand that all laws that do not bear equally on the open and the laborer be repealed, and the removal of all unjust technicalities, discriminations and delays of taxation, placing the burden of government in favor of the Alliance principles, and pledge himself to labor for the same with all his energy.
13. That we will not vote for any candidate for county, State or national representative who will not declare himself publicly in favor of the Alliance principles, and pledge himself to labor for the same with all his energy.
14. That we endorse the act of the National Farmers Alliance and Industrial Union held at Omaha, Pa.
Committee on Resolutions reported the following:
1. That when the county officers are to be filled that the sub-Union of this (Morgan) county can be organized and elected officers who belong to the Union to fill said office.
2. That we will not support any man for office who is not a member of the Union, or who will not pledge himself to support our principles.
3. That we attend our stated meetings more regular in the future than in the past.
4. Whereas it is Magoffin county's time to elect officers, and we are therefore resolved, that we endorse the action of the Magoffin county Union in selecting John J. Rice as the candidate to represent us in the State Legislature.
5. That each sub-Union in the county is recommended to send a delegate to the County Union, so that we may have a more harmonious action.
6. That the proceedings of this meeting be published in the HAZEL GREEN HERALD and Farmers Home Journal.
G. C. BYRD, Sec'y.
J. L. FUGETT, Coun.
A. ROLLAND, Sec'y.

The meeting then adjourned to meet with Pine Grove Union in July, 1891.
Respectfully submitted,

By action of the Executive Committee of the State F. & L. U. all charters issued prior to Feb. 1, 1890, should be returned to this office, together with list of present officials and 15 cents to pay postage, &c., and a new Union charter will be sent to the Union in place of the old charter.
Many Unions to date have failed to do this. Please do so at once.

In order to induce some brother in each sub Union to solicit subscribers to THE HERALD, I will make the following very liberal offer:
The regular price of THE HERALD is $1 per year (money always in advance), but for the next three months I will send ten copies of THE HERALD for $9, and to the one sending the largest club, I will give free a German silver badge (Alliance), very nice, and should be worn by every member of the club.
Now is the time to send in a club. Who will be the first to respond?

HAZEL GREEN HERALD.

SPENCER COOPER, - - - Editor.

HAZEL GREEN, KY.:
FRIDAY, - May 1, 1891.

FOR LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR.
HON. M. C. ALFORD,
OF FAYETTE COUNTY,
Subject to action of the Democratic Party.

BRIEF BON-BONS.

There is one thing that should not be exhibited at the World's Fair—a Chicago municipal election.

"Insanity" as a plea for murderers has given way to "hypnotism," or as old-timers used to call it, "memorism."

Mr. Harrison evidently isn't superstitious or he would not venture to "swing around the circle" in the face of the fate of the other Presidents who accomplished that feat.

We haven't much of a mavy to fight Italy with, but if the American eagle emits one of his fiercest shrieks the organ grinders will all be frightened out of seven years' growth.

Democratic politicians may as well begin now to brighten up on Judge Jim Jewell's famous phrase, for that it will be of practical utility just when the State convention is assured. Here's the cue, p. i. h.

The adage that "few office-holders die, and none resign" will have to be revised if Senator Edmunds' example becomes contagious. However, come to think of it, an epidemic of resignations would please a great many people.

There is always hope for a man who is aware of his own faults. Ex-Senator Blair, just before sailing for China, his new post of duty, declined to be interviewed, saying, "I have talked too much already." He had evidently read the newspapers.

When the young emperor of Germany has a spell of indigestion and speaks a little cross, as all of us liable to do under similar circumstances, all Europe shivers with fear and the air is full of war rumors. Americans have many troubles, but, thank heaven, fear of war isn't one of them.

Ex-Senator Ingalls says he proposes to devote his attention to making money by farming. We trust that he will succeed, but whether he does or not he will be better occupied than in making money out of the farmers, by exacting usurious rates of interest for money loaned upon mortgage, as he is credited with having done for years.

It was John Sherman who originated the expressive political phrase, "I am looking after my fence," and he has now started a new one on its travels by saying, "I came out here to build a barn." There are not a few people in Ohio who would like to know the kind of crop the wily politician proposes to store in that barn.

There is a wide difference of opinion in the ranks of the Republican party on the question of Canadian reciprocity. Senator Morrill says, "It will never come," and ex-Representative Butterworth says, "It is bound to come." These, of course, are the extremes, but even among those who favor the idea there is little hope of anything being accomplished under the present circumstances.

Secretary Tracy is deserving of the sympathy of all honest people in his effort to take the navy yards of the country out of politics, but he will probably realize, if he has not already done so, that he has undertaken the largest contract of his life, and his failure to carry it out need not surprise anybody. Mr. Tracy is only one man and the politicians who work the navy yards for their own personal benefit are numerous and influential.

Pella, Iowa, has been suffering from a disease called the grip. It has been discovered that the trouble was caused by infected water.

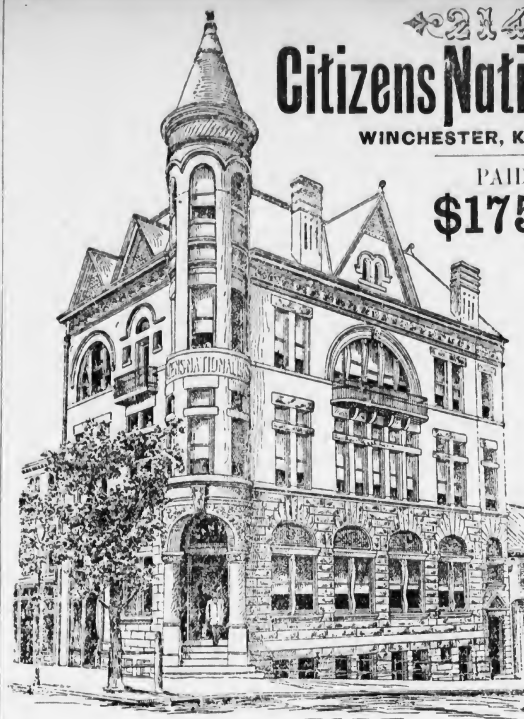

The belief that Hon. John Young Brown will be the Democratic nominee and the next Governor of Kentucky has steadily grown until it is now so strong as to be a conviction with a great majority of the thinking citizens of this Commonwealth. Even the few who devoutly desire his defeat admit that he is the most available man and the strongest candidate that will present his claims to the State convention. The honest yeomanry of the grand old State having looked over the political planetarium and most thoroughly canvassed the chances of each candidate, have witnessed "the hand writing on the wall," and look upon his nomination as a good omen for their common cause. His past record is so thoroughly in accord with the demands of the farmers—he has been so honest and conscientious in his opposition to corporations—that they will form a strong factor in his favor when the enlightening contest comes. And they will be well rewarded for that favor in the next four years. So well, indeed, that every man can point to his vote for Hon. John Young Brown as the proudest act of his life, and the young men of today, the grandfathers of the future, will tell their children and their children's children of Brown's triumph with a thrill of ecstatic joy in recollection of the event. One of the most distinguished citizens of a distant State, in a private letter to the editor of this paper, says of Col. Brown, "There should be no failure in his nomination; he would make a Governor who would be an honor even to that State, whose chair has been so often filled by as great a line of Governors as ever graced the destiny of any State." Fellow-citizen Democrats, in the face of all facts in favor of Mr. Brown, can we afford not to nominate him? While the opportunity offers let us grasp it, and secure in him a Governor who is in sympathy with the people.

That our young friend, Hon. Mitchell C. Alford will have no opposition for the nomination for Lieutenant Governor in the Democratic State convention at Louisville is an accepted fact, and is in accord with the popular will, but nevertheless his host of friends should continue their arduous devotion to his cause steadfastly and unceasingly until he reaches the goal of his ambition. Zeal for no other candidate should render his friends less zealous in his cause, and no jugglery that will in the least jeopardize his chances for the nomination should for a moment be considered. "Ways that are dark and tricks that are vain" might involve his interests, and we admonish his friends to stand aloof if such be attempted. No man who will go before the Louisville convention with a claim has done so much for the Democratic party within the present decade as has Mitchell Alford, no one deserves more from it, and his devotion should be duly awarded in his nomination by acclamation. This his past service justly merits, and fidelity to party interest must have the seal of favor if we are to hope for future success. Alford by acclamation is the appropriate thing, and let every delegate join in the glad acclaim.

Judge Swango is still sanguine of success in his race for the nomination for Register of the Land Office, and if he is properly supported from this section, as he should be, he will win with hands down. Every man in Eastern Kentucky should stand by him, and more especially the mountain men, as he is the only candidate representing this section in the scramble for State offices. In every county convention held next Saturday the delegates should be instructed to vote for Judge Swango in the State convention, "and use all honorable means to secure his nomination." If elected, Judge Swango would make a right Register, and as Eastern Kentucky does a greater amount of business with that office than any other portion of the State, it would be exceedingly appropriate to have that office from this end.

Major L. C. Norman, the present incumbent as State Auditor, has made such an efficient officer that there can be no doubt of his endorsement in the coming convention. He is filling out the unexpired term of Mr. Hewitt, under the Governor's appointment, and for his fidelity to that trust in the past he should be rewarded with the office for the next four years.

Sympathy for the widow of Wood Longmoor will give the nomination for Appellate Clerk to Abraham Addams, her brother, who is the present deputy in charge of the office. This is the mother of the masses, and those men who are trying to defeat the will of the people, will find that it is a losing game.

The papers over the State favorably mention Hon. Joe Elliston, of Mt. Sterling, in his race for Attorney-General, and he will certainly go into the State convention with a formidable force of followers. In the short time that he has been canvassing he seems to have visited every county of the Commonwealth, and everywhere he has found friends.

Apocryph of the proposed reunion of the Fourth Kentucky Cavalry, C. S. A., soon to be held, Judge G. B. Swango, who was a member of the same brigade (Giltner's), suggests that there be a reunion of the brigade, and names Cynthiana as the proper place to hold it. This command contained a large number of men from this section, and I should they conclude to meet at Cynthiana they will have a royal time.

The Bourbon News thinks Hon. Jack Hendrick will undoubtedly be the nominee for Attorney-General despite all the opposition he has. Mr. Hendrick lives in Fleming, and will be the choice of our people should Mr. Elliston at any time be eliminated from the race. With two such candidates as Mr. Elliston and Mr. Hendrick in Eastern Kentucky, the Western end of the State has only a Rhea of hope for the Attorney Generalship.

Col. John O. Hodges will go into the convention at Louisville with many votes for him for Superintendent of Public Instruction than any man in the race, according to the best information we can obtain. This being so, he bids fair to get the nomination, and in that case we have only to say that the Democratic party will have chosen wisely and the common school system secured the best equipped superintendent to be had in the State.

Democratic Mass Convention.

Pursuant to a call of the Executive Democratic Committee of the State of Kentucky, the Democrats of Wolfe county will meet in mass convention at the court house in Camptan, at 2 o'clock p. m., May the 2nd, 1891, for the purpose of selecting delegates to represent Wolfe county in the State convention to be held at Louisville on the 13th day of May, 1891, to nominate candidates for the various State offices to be voted for at the August election, 1891. All Democrats of the county are specially requested to be present, as this is an important election and the will of the masses of the Democracy of the State should be expressed in the County conventions and adhered to and fairly represented by delegates in the State convention, that when nominations are made peace and harmony may prevail and the nominees receive the full party vote in August. Democrats, look well to your own interests.

Chairman Democratic County Committee for Wolfe county.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

We are authorized to announce GEORGE W. DEAKE as a candidate for Sheriff of Wolfe County, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

JAMES K. ROBERTS, of Lee county, is a candidate for the State Senate in this, the 34th, Senatorial district, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce JOHN P. WELLS, of Paintsville, Johnson county, as a candidate for Senator from this, the 34th Senatorial district, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

A. P. Lacy is managing J. T. & F. Day's new store at Clay City.

Died—Monday night, of consumption, near Hazel Green, Miss Flora Finch.

W. T. Whaley, of Beattyville, is visiting here, but will return home next week.

Died—Thursday last week, infant child of Harris and Libby Higgins, colored.

P. R. Phillips, of Beattyville, was a guest of the Day House Monday and Tuesday.

The hacks between Rothwell and this place will begin running May 4th, if the road continues to improve.

Gas Meyer, the genial representative of W. M. Kerr & Co., Ironton, Ohio, was a guest of the Day House Tuesday.

Uncle John Hargis, of Jackson, was here the latter part of last week looking after his chances for the State Senatorship. He has some warm friends here.

Rev. J. Z. Hancey will preach at the Presbyterian church in this place on the second Sunday in May, at 11 o'clock A. M. and 7:30 P. M. Everybody invited.

Nothing will go in the F. & L. U. department that does not first pass through the hands of B. F. Davis, of Ezol, to whom all F. & L. U. matter should be addressed.

Candidates should announce now, as delays are dangerous and they gain nothing by it. District announcements $5, county $8, and fee will be the same up to July 31st. Always in advance.

The Hazel Green cornet band was out serenading Saturday night, and to say that the boys do exceedingly well for only four weeks' practice is but small praise for their phenomenal progress.

Judge Swango read the new constitution at a meeting of the F. & L. U. of this county, held on Lacy creek Friday, and explained many of its provisions. Those who heard it were very favorably impressed with the document.

Sunday is the regular preaching day at the Methodist Church South, of this place, and the pulpit will be occupied morning and evening by Rev. James E. Wright, the pastor, who hopes to see a good congregation on each occasion.

The District F. & L. U. meeting, in this, the Tenth Congressional district, held recently at Lee City, Wolfe county, adopted the HAZEL GREEN HERALD as the official organ of the district. A better selection could not have been made. —Sentinel-Democrat.

We are in receipt of the first issue of the daily Herald, published at Middletown. It is a large 8 page paper, filled with choice telegraphic news, local, &c., and the typographical appearance is exceptionally good. The magic city is to be congratulated on having so good a paper, and it is to be hoped the proprietors may find "there's millions in it."

Elder D. G. Combs assisted in the meeting at the Christian church from Saturday to Monday night, inclusive, and left for Beattyville Tuesday.

J. G. Trimble has returned from Memphis, Tenn., where he sold a number of town lots at satisfactory prices. In tearing down an old brick house on one of the lots sold, a bag containing $3,000 in gold was found in the chimney by the purchaser. The lot cost him $500. —Sentinel-Democrat.

A postal from Mr. Maupin, representing D. H. Carpenter, of Catlettsburg, informs us that he will visit this section soon with a full line of samples, and that he will be pleased to have our merchants favor him with an order. Those needing goods in his line should await his coming and learn his prices, as he is prepared to offer buyers special inducements.

Mr. J. Taylor Day, the big merchant of Hazel Green, has bought the Kentucky Union Company's general merchandise store at Clay City and is now in Cincinnati laying in a stock of goods. The store is one of the largest and best appointed east of this city, and Mr. Day is a shrewd and experienced business man and will do much to restore Clay City to her former state of prosperity. —Lexington Transcript.

The contest for the nomination for State Senator from this district is so far confined to two candidates, Hon. John S. Hargis, of Jackson, and Hon. James K. Roberts, of Beattyville. Both of them being from the Kentucky River side of the district, it will be hard to determine between them.

Later.—Since the above was in type, Hon. John P. Wells, of Paintsville, has announced.

Hon. G. B. Swango, of Wolfe county, candidate for Register of the Land Office, was in Georgetown last week meeting a few of his old friends and forming some new acquaintances. Mr. Swango comes from a section, from where most of the business in that office comes, and from a section that has not had an over supply of the State officers. Mr. Swango is as well qualified as his opponents for the place, and like them is an orthodox member of the Democratic party. The Enterprise has known Mr. Swango from his boyhood, and knows that he has been an untiring worker for the success of Democratic principles.—Georgetown Enterprise.

Hon. John S. Hargis, of Breathitt county, is announced for State Senator from this district, and he is going to make it mightily lively for the other aspirants. He stands well with the farmers, as is evidenced by the following extract from the proceedings of a F. & L. U. meeting at Crockettville, in his own county: "Resolved, That we hereby recommend to the Farmers and Laborers Union of the counties composing this the 34th Senatorial district, the Hon. John S. Hargis as a suitable person and in every way worthy and well qualified to represent us as a Senator in the next General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky."

Hon. John P. Wells, of Paintsville, Johnson county, is announced as a candidate for the State Senate from this district, the Thirty-fourth, and those who know him say he is an exceedingly popular man among the people. He submits his claims to the action of the Democratic party, and if elected promises to faithfully discharge the duties of the position in the interest of the people whom he will represent. Mr. Wells is a practicing lawyer at Paintsville, and possesses all the necessary requirements. A consideration of his claim is in order, and later on he will very likely call on the people and make their acquaintance. Johnson has never had the Senatorship.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this receipt, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper. W. A. NOYES, 829 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y.

An Eloquent Preacher.

Rev. Mr. Chalk, of Mt. Sterling, who has been holding a meeting at the Christian church at this place since Thursday of last week, closed Wednesday night, and Thursday morning left for his home. From there he goes to Ashland, Ky., where he will assist in the dedication of a new church, and hold a two weeks' meeting. Bro. Clark is an earnest advocate of the Gospel, an eloquent pulpit orator, and during his stay here impressed upon all the importance of living close to Christ. As a pulpit orator he is a spell-binder, a profound reasoner and altogether just the type of man calculated to win souls to Christ, both by precept and practice. All who heard him are the better for it, and all who can emulate the example he has left us will possess the true spirit of Christianity. We hope he may come again, sometime and stay long, as the intelligent discourses he delivers must uphold his Master's cause in any community. To sit under the drippings of the sanctuary when he pours forth the Saviour's love for the sinful sons of man is soul stirring and brings all who love Him, truly love Him, singing the sweet song, "Nearer, my God, to Thee." Could we always have such preaching the man-world must needs kneel at the Cross and shout with joy, "Pence on earth, good will to man." But, alas, denominational dogmas too often hide Deity, and the "songs of Zion" fall upon stony ground, with the result that there is no fruit in the Master's vineyard.

Editor HERALD: I seen your issue of the 24th inst., that complaint has been made to you that I am in the habit of banning THE HERALD from this office. Will your complainant please have the politeness to come around and make his grievance known to me? And if he doesn't deal in that kind of goods will he please let us know through THE HERALD when and to whom his paper was loaned, and if he can't give an instance of loaning THE HERALD will he please advise the public what paper of any kind has ever been loaned from this office. All the subscribers to THE HERALD except two at this office have boxes, and their papers are put in their boxes immediately after their arrival and are always taken out when the subscribers call for them. THE HERALD and all other papers that come to this office are given out promptly to the subscribers when called for, and in no case ever loaned. Respectfully,

Ezol Evolutions.

Elder J. M. Downing has just closed a very interesting meeting at this place. The principal work of the meeting was to tone up the business element of the church. The result is matters are now in much better shape, and the improvement will still be carried further as the officers are carefully revising the list of members and all that are not living up to their duty are requested to make satisfaction at once for the intention is to "purge out the old leaven that we may be a new lump," that our future may be as near Apostolic as possible. Communion services every Sunday at the close of Sunday school. Bro. Combs has also been employed another year, preaching on the second Sunday of each month at 11 o'clock A. M., and Saturday before at 3 P. M.

The shepherd of Ezol now reports even 100 lambs living, besides a great many that have died. It seems that J. M. Piernt is about to monopolize the sheep industry in the mountains. What about "Wingless?"

The horse show at this place last Saturday was well attended, and the fine horses from Hazel Green were greatly admired by the lovers of fine stock.

Elijah Ratliff, formerly of this place, has been in Missouri for some time and last week sent for his family. They left Sunday for their new home.

HAZEL GREEN HERALD.

SPENCER COOPER, Editor.

HAZEL GREEN, KY.:
FRIDAY, May 1, 1891.

STONEWALL JACKSON'S FIDDLE.

It Was More Difficult to Master Than Mathematics.

When Jackson first entered West Point he was regarded as a remarkably staid and green youth. General Whiting, who afterward served in the Confederate army, was then a cadet in the class above Jackson's and was appointed to ask him some questions in mathematics, in accordance with the custom which then prevailed at the military academy. Whiting thought him at first remarkably dull, but noticed that he studied and worked with dogged persistency. The class of which Wilcox and Whiting were members was graduated just prior to the Mexican war. Several of the young officers were in Washington on their way to Mexico, and on the night of their arrival they were invited to go with Jefferson Davis, then a member of the House, to a reception given at the White House. Later both Davis and T. J. Jackson ranked their faces as a whole. The Rio Grande. At the close of the war Jackson earned every member of his class and was a brevet Major, and was stationed on Governor's Island, near New York. Whiting, Wilcox, and a number of young officers were visiting New York, and when several brother officers from Governor's Island called on them Whiting asked:

"What has become of Tom Jackson; how is he getting on?"
"Badly, badly," replied the officer; "since he has stopped fighting he has taken to fiddling. He came over to this city a few weeks ago and bought a fiddle, several bows and a pile of resin. You will remember at West Point Jackson was no music in his soul, no poetry, no relaxation, nothing but hard application to his text-books. So his new fad makes it awful for us. Every minute he has to devote to practicing on the fiddle, and the sounds which fill the barracks in his vicinity are beyond description—almost beyond endurance."
"Be patient," said Whiting, with a smile; "if Tom Jackson is determined to master his violin you'll listen to a second Paganini before he gives up."
But Whiting's prediction was not verified. Jackson never became a musician.—Chicago Evening Journal.

AN ODD LIBRARY.

Books on Botany Bound in the Bark of Trees and Plants.

At Warthenstein, in Germany, there is perhaps one of the most curious original collections of books extant. This consists of a botanical collection. Outwardly the books present the common appearance of a whole volume, and that is the first impression; but a minute examination reveals the fact that each is a complete history of the particular tree which produced it. At the back of the book the bark has been removed from a space which allows the scientific and common names of the tree to be placed as a title. One side is formed from the split bark, showing its grain and natural fracture; the other shows the wood when worked smooth and varnished. One end shows the grain as left by the saw, the other the finely-polished wood. On opening the book it is found to contain the fruits, seeds, leaves and other products of the tree. These are accompanied by well-printed description of its habits, usual location and manner of growth. It fact, every thing which has a bearing upon that particular tree secures a place in this wonderful, useful and valuable collection. Here is a precedent for the botanical societies to adopt, and although doubtless expensive, yet it will certainly repay in its utility.—Christian at Work.

"O, no," said the glib young woman, "I never expect to adopt music as a profession; I merely make it a means of killing time." "I have no doubt," replied the unamiable old gentleman, "that in your hands the weapon proved as effective as could be desired."—Washington Post.

A Responsive Audience.
Rawley—Why, Curtin, how is it you were not a first-brighter at your own play?

Curtin—I was too nervous. Are you just from the theater?

Rawley—Yes.

Curtin—Did my pathetic scenes bring any tears?

Rawley—Yes, the people in the house laughed till they cried.—Munsey's Weekly.

An Excellent Bargain.

Mrs. Bargain—How much are your handkerchiefs?

Ketchum (the clerk, glitely)—These sell at thirty cents, and these at twenty; but if you take one of each you may have them for twenty-five cents apiece.

Mrs. Bargain Hunter (eagerly)—I'll take half a dozen. And she goes home satisfied.—Judge.

LAUGHS OF ALL KINDS.

"The more wealth a man has, the more difficult for him to find out what people really think about him."
"How did you cure your husband of smoking, Mrs. Wing?" "I made him let me buy all his cigars for him."

It is one of the curiosities of natural history that a horse enjoys the most when he hasn't a bit in his mouth.

RESTAURANT GUEST—"Every thing you have brought me is stone cold." Poite Walter—"Here are the mustard and pepper, sir."

A CRIMINAL has discovered a mixture which insures protection from ants, but what the public really fears for is protection from uncles.

The different kinds of laughs they have are: Dudes, Hal! ha! Farmers, Ho! ho! Teamsters, Haw! haw! Feed dealer, Hay! hay! Women, He! he!

SMALL BOY—"There's one thing in the Bible I like, says she'd like to change." Minister—"Impossible! What can it be, my young man?" Small Boy—"Her age, sir."

"What is it, do you suppose, that keeps the moon in place and prevents it from falling?" asked Araminta. "I think it must be the beams," said Charley, softly.

HUSBAND—"Good-bye, dear!" Wife (coldly)—"Good-bye!" Husband (giving her fifty dollars for shopping)—"Good-bye again, dear." Wife—"Kiss me, Good-bye, my own darling. I love you early. Once more, love, good-bye!"

This man who was convulsed with laughter at a woman trying to sharpen a pencil, was soon after discovered trying to cut a paper pattern by the united efforts of a pair of scissors, his right hand, lower jaw and two-thirds of his tongue.

PHOTOGRAPHER—"Taken high degrees in your scientific course? Proud of you, my boy. By the way, can you prove that heat expands and cold contracts?" College Graduate—"Certainly. Don't the days grow longer in warm weather and shorter in winter?"

ARIDIST SWAIN (to object of his affection)—"For several weeks past I have been trying to speak to you, Miss Rosa, but you never gave me a chance of putting in a word. I therefore gladly avail myself of your temporary houselessness to make you an offer of marriage." YOUNG CATHART—"Did you ever hear such horrible, disgusting, ear-splitting—Oh Proudfather—"Sir—? Why, that's my eldest daughter, and—"I repeat, sir, such out-spitting clatter as those children are making? Why, I can't hear a word of the song."

A SWELL at the sea side was surprised when leaning against the railings on the parade to notice that nearly everybody who passed him burst into laughter. On looking down at his feet some time after he perceived to his horror that he was standing just over a notice board which read in large print: "Stand for one donkey."

ACTS ABOUT THE U. S.

THERE are nineteen millionaires in the United States whose combined blue blooded feet up about $140,000,000.

THERE are in the United States thirty-five or more colleges of pharmacy or departments of pharmacy of universities or colleges.

THE largest county in the United States is Carter County, in Montana, which contains 36,000 square miles, being larger in extent than the States of Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Delaware and Rhode Island.

THE greatest length of the United States from the Atlantic to the Pacific on the parallel of 42 degrees is 2,700 miles; and its greatest breadth, from Point Isabel, Tex., to the northern boundary near Pembina, N. D., 1,611 miles.

EACH minute, night and day, by the official reports, the United States mails cost $839 and spends $401. The interest on the public debt was $96 a minute last year, or just exactly the same amount of silver melted in that time. The telephone used 593 times, the telegraph 136 times.

THE central point of the United States territory is in the bay of San Francisco. This fact may stirle the Chicagoans, but will be found strictly correct if one considers that the western limit of land over which the Stars and Stripes wave is on the Alaskan islands, only fifty miles from the Asiatic coast and 3,000 miles beyond the Golden Gate.

ENTIRELY DIFFERENT.

Smiley—Do you know why you are different from the Wilamette river?

Bedchamber—"That's a conundrum, and I give it up."

Smiley—Because it makes such large deposits on its banks.

Bedchamber—Well, then, I suppose I'm like the Columbia, which puts all its deposits on the bar.—West Shore.

AFTER THE BAIT.

Husband—You let that rake, De Courcy, kiss your hand in the conservatory.

Wife—It's an abominable falsehood.

Husband—For shame! I saw it!

Wife (sighing)—Now I know you love me no longer, when you believe your own eyes rather than your poor wife's word.—Grip.

A WICKED MAN.

First Man—What do you think of Jones? I heard this morning that he actually owes for the wig he wears!

Second Man—That's what you might call a hair-owing case, isn't it?—Tears sifting.

CONVINCED AT LAST.

A Court Episode Which Proves That All Things Are Possible.

"I want a warrant!"

These were the words an excited young man shouted as he rushed into the office of a justice of the peace and paused before the clerk when the venerable bulwark of the law was reposing his weary feet. If the young man thought to infuse the legal luminary with a portion of his excitement he was disappointed. Justice do not get excited unless they see a chance of losing their fees. This one simply removed the pedal rampart from between his red nose and the excited youth, dropped upon the desk the hands that had been clasped behind his repository of legal lore and eyed the applicant for a warrant with mingled curiosity and doubt.

"What'd you want a warrant fer?" he finally asked.

"I want to arrest a woman for stealing my sister's dress."

"How old's your sister?"

"Six years old."

"How'd you know she stole it?"

"I saw her wear it last night. She'd made over to fit her, but I knew it in a minute."

"See here, young fellow, said the august judge, as he eyed the young man in a threatening way, 'don't ye go fer to be foolin' with the dignity of this yer court. Don't ye suppose I know that a woman can't make over a dress of a six-year-old child to fit her? They ain't goods enough. I ain't been married thirty years without learnin' somethin' about wimmin's fixin's. Now, you go right away from yere before I fine yer five dollars for contempt of court.'"

"Oh! Well, that's different. Why didn't ye say so in the first place? Ye have the warrant."—"Quill, in West Shore.

ABREAST OF THE TIMES.

A DECREASED Los Angeles paper sunk $150,000 during the four years it was published.

A MAINE leman estimates that the amount of lee cut on the Kennebec this winter will be about $99,000 tons.

A CRAB was caught in the harbor of Victoria, B. C., that was three feet six inches around the waist. It was presented to the Museum of Natural Science.

A NEW variety of seagull has made its appearance in the New England States. It is darker than the old kind, and the most remarkable peculiarity is that its tail is narrowed to a sharp point.

MAX in Jackson County, Ore., has been plowing this fall with a steam engine, and has found that it works quite successfully. He pulls eight plows with his engine, and turns over the soil at the rate of sixteen acres per day. The cost of running the outfit is not over five dollars per day.

THERE seems to be good reason for the increased interest in athletics and various kinds of physical culture. It is reported that out of twenty applications for enlistment at the United States rendezvous in Portland only one has been accepted, deficient chest being the main trouble.

GENERAL BERDAN has proposed a novel solution of the silver coinage problem. His scheme is to make a dollar coin of silver, mechanically made, combined, by first making a silver coin worth twenty-five cents, with a hole in the center, and then pressing into the hole a piece of copper worth seventy-five cents.—Electrical Review.

COSTLY RELICS.

THE speech of Claudius, engraved on plates of bronze, is yet preserved in the tower known as Exeter. It was discovered in 1528 on the heights of St. Sebastian above the town.

THE Biblical Society of London are endeavoring to get in its possession a papyrus manuscript which is in the handwriting of the great apostle St. Peter. They claim that one hundred thousand dollars offered for the manuscript by another British society was refused.

THE only authentic portrait of Cleopatra that is known to archaeologists is a bust which appears on a series of coins. It is in the reverse, and bears the inscription in Greek: "Queen Cleopatra, the Divine, the Younger," while on the obverse is a portrait of "Antony, Dictator for the Third Time, Triumvir."

AMONG historic relics is one said to be Shakespeare's signet. Upon the seal, entwined with a true lover's knot, are the initials W. S. It is believed to be his death and found many years after by a laborer's wife near Stratford churchyard. This is the only authentic piece of valuable property known to be in existence.

THE most famous gems extant are perhaps the Gemma Augustea in Vienna, a sardonyx nearly a quarter of a yard long, on which the emperor Augustus is cut in the rarest workmanship by Discorides, of Rome. There are magnificently cut antique amethysts, though rock crystals are and is mainly used for vessels and cups.

HOW SHE SPENT THE DAY.

Mr. Newswell—Oh, here you are at last. You have been down town all day, my dear, and dinner has been waiting for some time.

Mrs. Newswell—I assure you I have not made one purchase this afternoon.

Mr. Newswell—Then where in the mischief have you been?

Mrs. Newswell—Been waiting for my change.—America.

READ THIS TWICE!

The only Protection that will effectively protect all people, all classes, all labor and all interests is that styled SELF PROTECTION: acquired only from a truthful knowledge of ways and means, legal and illegal, just and unjust, by which the burdens of government, profits of labor and industry, are so unequally divided.

That knowledge is power, and ignorance its slave, is forcibly illustrated daily in all walks of life, among all people, in all countries.

Where knowledge is used as a power or a means for gaining wealth without labor or an equivalent thereof, it becomes necessary to deceive or keep in ignorance of such methods those from whom the wealth is taken; hence it is that of the ten thousand newspapers printed in the United States, less than ten are absolutely free and independent of the power or control of some class, party or monopoly whose interest it is to keep the great mass of people in ignorance of their methods.

The Cincinnati Weekly Enquirer is one of the few, if not the only one, absolutely free from such influences.

It is the most honest, thorough, able teacher and exponent of truthful knowledge, of reliable data, free from partisan bias, fair, frank and explicit to such degree that one cannot but feel edified and capable of forming correct conclusions therefrom. Such a paper should be in every household. Sample copies can be obtained by addressing the publishers, at Cincinnati, O.

The Enquirer and THE HERALD will both be sent for one year for ONLY $1.80. Send in your subscriptions now!

Sayings and Doings of the Citizens in Our Neighboring Counties.

As Heard and Seen by Herald Correspondents and Hastily Written up for Our Army of Readers.

MORGAN.

West Liberty Wags.

There are but few families of a literary character in this vicinity who are not subscribers to THE HERALD, and all speak of this home paper with praise, and we think that only the scarcity of money has kept this valuable paper from many homes, for its interest is the people's interest, therefore a fast friend to men of every occupation who strive honestly for success.

We have a new Board of Trustees elected for the benefit of our town, and we shall soon see whether they mean such things as cleaning the town of vices and filling streets. We need sidewalks, we need order on public days, we need society guarded and the town laws executed. This we hope to see under the management of the present officers.

Our farmers seem to be in earnest and the click of the corn planter and hum of business is noticed all around. We trust that the farmers in this section will never have to rely on other sections of the State for provisions as they have in the last two years.

Common Pleas court adjourned last Friday after only a week's session. Judge Patrick ruled with the dignity that characterizes men of his ability, and as many cases were filed away and laid over, the court adjourned sooner than was expected.

Miss Mary Phillips, of this place, who is striving to maintain herself and her afflicted mother, deserves the patronage of all who wish to study the art of painting, as she is an earnest teacher and skilled in the art.

Rev. Dave May, who is superintending the hauling of sawlogs into the Licking which lodged in an obstructed place near here, has preached several earnest sermons at the M. E. church.

The funny tribe is suffering to a great extent from the fishermen's hook. If they tend toward making brain food, we shall soon have a sensible people indeed.

Ed C. Orrer, of Mt. Sterling, one of Kentucky's brightest sons and lawyers, is visiting his father-in-law, Col. J. T. Hazlerigg.

April 27. ELITE.

The Con. Con. has closed, but the extraordinary low prices in furniture, sewing machines, clothing, boots, shoes, dry goods, notions, groceries and hardware, have not closed at our store, but are still open for the benefit of the many. A man, not a regular customer, who had business in town, called at our store last Friday, and, being satisfied with prices and goods, made a nice purchase and then remarked that what he saw in THE HERALD was true. You see advertising pays. We are not the least superstitious but we can not help believe that business men will prosper more if they patronize home industry. THE HERALD is the great medium we have now through which to talk to many people and is certainly the paper for the masses to read and enterprising business men to advertise in. If you wish letter heads, envelopes, bills or job printing of any kind, apply to me, or the editor of THE HERALD.

PROCEEDINGS.

Of the Wolfe County F. & L. U.

The Farmers and Laborers Union of Wolfe county met in County meeting with Profit Judge No. 373, on Lucy creek, April 24, 1891. The President and Vice President being absent, the house was called to order at 10 o'clock, A. M., by County Secretary, M. C. Kash, and proceeded to the election of U. M. Falken, President, and A. B. Landrum, Vice President, pro tem., of said meeting, the remaining officers of the county being present.

After opening in the usual form, the following committees were appointed: Legislative Demands—Wm. Lusk, J. F. Catron and E. T. Kash. Resolutions—J. S. Cox, Stephen Swango and Daniel Lewis.

After an interesting address by Bro. A. J. Ringo, of Menfence county, on The Good of the Order, the house adjourned until 1:30 P. M., for dinner, which was furnished in an abundant supply by the hospitable brotherhood of that vicinity.

House called to order pursuant to adjournment, at which time Hon. G. B. Swango gave an address on the actions of the Constitutional Convention, etc. Addresses were also delivered by Bros. John S. Hargis, of Breathitt county, and County Lecturer E. T. Kash on the Good of the Order.

After prayer by the Chaplain, the house adjourned until 8 o'clock Saturday morning.

Met pursuant to adjournment, April 25th. Opened according to ritual, same officers presiding.

On motion of S. D. Cox, Bro. M. C. Spencer, of Spruce Gap Union, No. 2059, Wolfe county, was authorized to buy and sell goods for the brotherhood of said Union.

As pertaining to Legislative Demands, the resolutions as adopted by the Tenth Congressional district meeting, held at Lee City, Wolfe county, Ky., were unanimously adopted by this body. (For said resolutions the reader is referred to THE HERALD of April 17.)

It was further resolved by this meeting that the F. & L. U. of Wolfe county have nothing to do in the order, as a Union, with the selection or nomination of candidates to fill the offices of said county.

It is also resolved that we return our thanks to the people of Lucy creek for the hospitality shown this body while in their midst.

Be it further resolved that these resolutions be published in the HAZEL GREEN HERALD, the official organ of the Tenth Congressional district.

The house then adjourned in the usual form to meet with the Stillwater Union, No. 156, on the fourth Friday in July, 1891, at 10 o'clock A. M.

M. C. KASH, Sec.

C. M. PALLEN, Pres. pro tem.

KUTTAWAH ON ROBERTS.

He is Worthy to Wear the Senatorial Toga.

With some misgivings it is that I venture to address you again on matters political in this Senatorial district. Acting on your suggestion, as appended to my last, I am forced rather more into detail than I feel my ability to go—and do justice to the details. It does seem to me that there are able pens over here—yours, for instance—that could set forth the facts in any case and make them much more simple and easily understood than mine. But this, really, is not an excuse for me—you are wanting my opinion just now, the others will fall in line when needed and help build a climax of right for our side—the best, last.

Yes, sir; I can take James K. Roberts. I knew him when he was out on the farm, and I know what his opportunities have been, in every respect. He was then a sober, industrious, honest boy, with discretion, it seemed to me, beyond his years; and in his maturity those characteristics are all the more plainly seen. He was very studious, giving to his books all the evenings and hours usually laid away by boys and the results of the course are now seen in his education which is much beyond the average. This has told strongly on his business success, which is simply splendid though yet in its beginning.

I am aware that these statements are but repetitions of truths perfectly well known wherever Mr. Roberts is known, but this district is a large territory containing many people, each of whom has an interest in knowing, and a right to know, what he can learn or at least what he chooses to learn, of those who aspire to represent him as an agent in any kind of business—public as well as private.

The people are waking up to demand something more than a brave hand man to pose as a candidate. The ability to tell stale jokes and set up whisky for the crowd is not ability of the sort that makes a country prosperous, and the people of all parties are finding it out fast. They must have candidates who are clear and clean, as men; who are pure and true, as politicians. Those who would represent the people in any way, must be in full sympathy with them; must be gentlemen of marked individuality in whose integrity the utmost confidence can be placed. He must be a man whom the people can believe when he tells them in plain words what he is for and what he will try to do, and not a man who flatters or amuses us for a passing hour, but gives not a thought or care for us or our children when the certificate of election is in his pocket.

My knowledge of Mr. Robert—general and intimate—is such that I can not easily be mistaken in my estimate of him, and my candid opinion based on that knowledge is that in every way he answers the requisites of my ideal candidate, as pen lined above—an ideal the people I am sure are coming to demand.

Should this side of the district receive the recognition and justice to which it is entitled, then Mr. Roberts will be our next Senator, and he will discharge the trust so well that when his service is ended all the people will find it in their hearts to say, "Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, we will make thee ruler over many."—"Kuttawah," in Three Forks Enterprise.
